Received call about a friend wanting to sell chips and water during yard sale day. Checked with the County and they said they would allow it because people were being invited on to the property. Board discussed that if they were cooking food it might be different. If someone was selling cooked food and didn't go through the proper channels and someone got sick the Borough and Council would not be liable. If an organization is selling baked goods they are told to post a sign stating that the food was not prepared in an inspected kitchen. Family Fun day is inspected.
